Fall is in the Air

Most people love those first signs of Fall - the cooler breeze in the air, kids and coaches working hard on the practice fields, new colors peeking out from the rows of trees. This season change brings out in people a spirit of eagerness in preparing for the winter and festive celebrations to come. With school back in session, it's a time that's ideal for recognizing the importance of teachers and coaches. We also start to think about goals for the new year and how we can improve on how we have been doing things.

We all know that coaches play a critical role in a team's success as they know the game and their job is to teach and motivate. Being coached in a business setting provides the same benefits. Coaches ask powerful questions that help reach conclusions, coaches help unlock a person's potential, and coaches further develop their clients as better leaders and communicators. Coaches can help you improve your sales techniques and get you ready for your next big sales game!

Our executive coaches at GJHC have coached over 45 business owners, executives and key employees. Currently, one of our executive coaches is working closely with an established client to create a proprietary program which will drive their sales to achieve 20% growth in the next year. Positive changes are already underway and we can't wait to see what lasting results this coaching partnership will bring!

WE HELP YOUR COMPANY PERFORM AT ITS BEST

Replacing full-time employees with contract employees is a great way for your business to add immediate depth to your leadership team while saving money by paying for only those hours you use, avoiding costly payroll taxes and employee insurances and benefits, eliminating payment for holidays and vacations and benefiting from an experienced professional in any area you need help.

ON YOUR MARKS, GET SET, SUCCEED!

Gierke Jungbauer Human Capital has a team of Executive Coaches who can help your team develop the best talent and help your leaders achieve their highest potential. Our proven process leverages our team's many years of experience to improve employee engagement, 360° relationship understanding, identification of areas needing improvement or whatever your organization wants to do to take things to the next level. All this targeted help and no expensive full-time wages or benefits.

Great athletes continue to train and grow. It's worthwhile to continue to help your leaders develop, whether they're a new leader just getting started or an experienced executive who may not have internal resources available to help them thrive in their role.
